Greta Thunberg

Thunberg first became known for her activism in August 2018 when, at age 15, she began spending her school days outside the Swedish parliament to call for stronger action on global warming by holding up a sign saying (in Swedish) "School strike for climate". Soon, other students started similar protests in their own communities. Together they organised a school climate strike movement under the name Fridays for Future.

Thunberg is known for her straightforward speaking manner, both in public and to political leaders. She says that there is a climate crisis and things must change to save the Earth. At home, Thunberg has made several lifestyle choices including giving up air travel and not eating meat.

Her sudden rise to world fame has made her a leader and a target. In May 2019, Thunberg was on the cover of Time magazine, which named her a "next generation leader" and noted that many see her as a role model. Some media have described her impact on the world stage as the "Greta Thunberg effect". Thunberg has been nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize. In September 2019, she addressed the UN Climate Action Summit in New York.
